

Statement on COVID-19, August 2020

Covid-19 has changed the travel landscape for all of us. With continuing uncertainty regarding travel restrictions and health guidelines, knowing when and where to travel again with confidence will be highly personal decisions. But it is never too soon to go back to your wish list and consider where your desires will take you when the world begins to reopen.

Ultimately, our priority for our clients, colleagues, and friends is to travel safely. We won't encourage you to go until you're ready. As the landscape shifts, please feel free to get in touch with us to discuss your options, concerns, and wishes. And we'll advise you as best we can at the time what challenges you might face when traveling.

Beyond Doorways' Cancellation Policy and Third-Party Travel Insurance – Our cancellation policy generally protects you, us, and the many small providers we work with throughout Europe. However, we are committed to being flexible and will review with you all the possible options and scenarios when we sit down to plan your travel.

We always recommend that our clients take third party travel insurance

(www.squaremouth.com is a good resource for researching insurance packages) to cover their private travel arrangements with us, especially when investing in advance on a potentially expensive trip. However, we have found that most travel insurance companies will not cover cancellation due to COVID-19.

We will all travel again, when the world has returned to some sense of normalcy. This is our sincerest hope.
